

college of LANGUAGES, LINGUISTICS & LITERATURE

We regularly teach...

| | | |
|-----------------|-------------|------------|
| Ancient Greek | Indonesian | Russian |
| Arabic | Italian | Samoan |
| Cambodian-Khmer | Japanese | Sanskrit |
| Chamorro | Korean | Spanish |
| Filipino | Latin | Tahitian |
| French | Mandarin | Thai |
| German | Maori | Tongan |
| Hindi | Marshallese | Urdu |
| Ilokano | Portuguese | Vietnamese |

Centers & Institutes

- CBR Center for Biographical Research
- CITS Center For Interpretation & Translation Studies
- CSLR Center For Second Language Research
- ELI English Language Institute
- HELP Hawai'i English Language Program
- KLFC Korean Language Flagship Center
- LAE Language Analysis & Experimentation Labs
- LDTC Language Documentation Training Center
- LLC Language Learning Center
- NFLRC National Foreign Language Resource Center
- Sato Center for Pidgin, Creole and Dialect Studies

College of Languages, Linguistics, & Literature

2425 McCarthy Mall, Bilger 101

Honolulu HI 96822-2322

ph: 808.956.8516 fax: 808.956.9879

lll.hawaii.edu

April 2012

What is YOUR focus?

The College of LLL offers outstanding Foreign Language Instruction in languages you expect to find at any first-rate university; LLL excels at the languages of East Asia, Southeast Asia, and the Pacific. But such instruction is incomplete without an emphasis on the Literature and Culture of the speakers. The diverse character of the UH faculty and students, as well as that of the surrounding community ensures you a well-rounded education. The English department, with its emphasis on Creative Writing, Composition and Rhetoric, provides a powerful springboard into many professional, business, and service careers. All component, leading the way nationally, especially in the areas of language acquisition, praxis, and conservation.

LLL departments include a strong Research

Celebrate the Power of the Word!

UNIVERSITY of HAWAII
MĀNOA

College of Languages, Linguistics, & Literature

celebrating the Power of the Word

College of Languages, Linguistics, & Literature

lll.hawaii.edu

808.956.8516 ☎ Bilger 101

LLL (as it is popularly called) is one of the four Arts and Sciences colleges of the University of Hawai'i at Mānoa and offers a broad curriculum in English studies, foreign and heritage languages and literatures, second language studies, and linguistics. Composed of six departments and several programs and centers, LLL has capitalized on Hawai'i's location in the Pacific to provide, in addition to traditional fields of study, curricula with a focus on Asia and the Pacific unique in the nation. The College regularly teaches more than 25 languages and has the capacity to teach many more according to demand.

The programs in the College offer a full range of degrees, from the BA, to the MA, and the PhD. The faculty has long been recognized for its commitment to innovative research in language and literature, and for the excellence of its teaching, with an emphasis on small classes (averaging 20 students) and close interaction between teacher and student.

East Asian Languages & Literatures

hawaii.edu/eall

808.956.8940 ☎ Moore 382

The largest department of its kind in the US, EALL offers a curriculum unparalleled in its breadth, depth, and variety of courses. Undergraduate students can develop a high level of proficiency in spoken and written aspects of the languages. Additional courses cover the literary cultures of East Asia and the linguistic analyses of Chinese, Japanese and Korean. Extra-curricular clubs, video/film showings, lectures, and study abroad programs promote cultural awareness in addition to language proficiency. Graduate students may pursue either of the two advanced professional tracks, language/linguistics or literary studies.

English

english.hawaii.edu

808.956.3088 ☎ Kuykendall 402

English offers undergraduate and graduate emphases in Literary and Cultural Studies (American, Asian American, British, and Pacific Literatures), in Composition and Rhetoric, and in Creative Writing. English is a large department, but class sizes are kept small to encourage discussion and exchange among students and faculty. We publish print and on-line scholarly and creative journals, and the Department sponsors weekly faculty and student presentations and readings, as well as more formal scholarly lectures on a variety of subjects. English is a diverse, active, engaged field that will help you develop your analytical, communication, and imaginative skills. We promise.

Indo-Pacific Languages & Literatures

ipll.manoa.hawaii.edu

808.956.8672 ☎ Spalding 255

IPLL provides an opportunity without parallel elsewhere in the country for students to acquire an in-depth knowledge of the languages and cultures of an area that encompasses more than 25 percent of the earth's population and an unusual diversity of peoples. Students of Indo-Pacific languages and cultures can enhance their opportunities to find a career in international relations; provide service to the community in such fields as social work, public health, nursing, medicine, and law; perform research on Asia and the Pacific; and develop cross-cultural awareness and understanding in Hawai'i's multicultural environment.

Languages & Literatures of Europe and the Americas

manoa.hawaii.edu/llea

808.956.8520 ☎ Moore 483

LLEA consists of the Classics, French, German, Russian, and Spanish Divisions, which offer first-year and second-year courses in eight languages, any of which may count toward the two-year Hawaiian or Second Language requirement. LLEA offers the BA in each of the above five areas, undergraduate certificates in each of the same five areas (including a certificate in Latin American and Iberian Studies), as well as MAs in French and in Spanish. LLEA prides itself in offering students excellent teaching at every level of instruction and offering many graduate students teaching assistantships, and encourages research that benefits and involves the local community.

Linguistics

ling.hawaii.edu

808.956.8602 ☎ Moore 569

Founded in 1963 and recognized as one of the nation's premier programs, the Department of Linguistics offers MA and PhD degrees, in addition to opportunities for undergraduate study through the university's Interdisciplinary Studies option. We focus our teaching and research on two crucial initiatives:

- the documentation and conservation of the world's languages, with a special focus on the Pacific and Asia, home to almost half of the planet's linguistic diversity, and
- the use of experimental and laboratory techniques to better understand language acquisition, language use, and language variation.

Second Language Studies

hawaii.edu/sls

808.956.8610 ☎ Moore 570

One of the most well-known departments internationally in this area, SLS offers a BA, an MA, an Advanced Graduate Certificate, and a PhD in Second Language Studies. Our course topics include bilingual education, Creole (Pidgin) and dialect studies, language policy and planning, psycholinguistics, qualitative, quantitative, and mixed methods research methodology, second language acquisition, second language teaching methodologies and curriculum development, and second language testing/assessment. Our graduate programs provide advanced academic education for second language researchers, language teachers, and other language professionals.