Wade Davis was named by the National Geographic Society as one of the Explorers for the Millennium. He has been described as “a rare combination of scientist, scholar, poet and passionate defender of all of life’s diversity.” He has also traveled and done extensive research in the preservation of indigenous cultures and languages, particularly in Polynesia.

An extraordinary and inspiring storyteller, Davis has appeared on TED.com and as host in documentaries on the National Geographic Channel and the Smithsonian Network. He is dedicated to preserving not only the biosphere, but also the “ethnosphere,” which he describes as “the sum total of all thoughts and dreams, myths, ideas, inspirations, and intuitions.”

This event is made possible by the late Dr. Dai Ho Chun through his estate gift, which established the Dai Ho Chun Endowment for Distinguished Lecturers at the UH-Manoa Colleges of Arts and Sciences. Dr. Chun was a distinguished and visionary educator. This lecture is also sponsored by the UH-Manoa College of Languages, Linguistics, and Literature. Additional support is provided by Manoa of Pacific Journal of International Writing.
